Re: Jefferson County R-VII High School

To Whom It May Concern:

I want to take this opportunity to express my thanks and appreciation for the role CCS Group played in the management and construction of the Jefferson County R-VII High School. Even though this was the first project that CCS Group and Goodwin Bros. had ever worked on together, the cooperation, professionalism and teamwork displayed would cause one to think that we would have worked together for many years.

CCS Group played an integral part in completing this school project on time for the first day of school in August of 2009. I think all of us had our doubts on January 2, 2009 as we looked at an open field with the temperature barely above freezing if this project could be completed on time. However, the ability and experience of CCS group to coordinate, communicate, and motivate all of the entities involved allowed for this project to become a success.

The CCS Group staff, both in the field, and in the office worked diligently with the owner, the architects and engineers, the general contractor, as well as the subcontractors to create a true team environment so that everyone was aware of the expectations of each entity. CCS Group kept everyone in touch with schedule milestone dates in order to meet certain deadlines so the critical path schedule was maintained. The field knowledge of Lloyd Pooker added to the success by understanding the construction methods which provided insight for improving schedule and/or providing value engineering and cost savings ideas for the owner.

Again, we thank you for your role in this project. It was a pleasure working together and we look forward to the opportunity in the future.

Sincerely,
